

PRESS RELEASELAUNCH OF STEM V COVID-19, CONNECTING ADVISORY STEM EXPERTS WITH TECHNOLOGY
COMPANIES TACKLING COVID-19*RELEASED 27TH MARCH 2020

In response to recent events and the announcements around the increased uncertainty of the coming months, we have worked day and night to launch STEM v COVID-19.

Now is the time for action. It will be challenging, but collectively increasing our response time to COVID-19 will give us the best chances to save lives.

Health care systems, governments and community groups are working under extreme strain. The technology industry has come forward with support to fight this pandemic by providing vital aid to prevent systems collapsing under pressure.

STEM v COVID-19 is a network of STEM experts who are volunteering their skills in an advisory capacity. Our specialists come from a range of backgrounds and are ready to support technology companies in combating COVID-19. We will work together to broaden our understanding and collaborate on solutions.

The evidence is clear; as is our goal which is to facilitate knowledge sharing to increase response times. STEM v COVID-19 is building a shareable and searchable database to allow for this to happen. If you are a STEM expert or a technology company tackling COVID-19, please head over to www.stemvcovid19.com.

This virus transcends all borders, our response and our commitment to it must also. Please enlist yourself, the world needs you right now more than ever.

END